

Presuppositions

Presuppositions are statements that when used impact your beliefs about how people communicate. Its like polishing a rock and discovering a gem.

When my daughter snuck out of her window at 12:30 a.m., I thought of the presupposition, “Behind every behavior is a positive intent.” For her the positive intent was to be there for a friend in crisis. She tearfully made her confession the next morning - and wrote about her breach of trust. Another presupposition came to mind, “There is no such thing as failure, only feedback.”
